

Dr. Norrizan Razali

Founder, Managing Director

I have built a 27-year career in education, an area that I am passionate about.

My experience consolidates education perspectives from a wide spectrum of organizations, the academic institution, think tank, government-linked corporation and multinational tech companies. I have held roles as an educator, consultant, cross-border program director and sales leader.

I am now an entrepreneur at Tech Capacity, which I founded, to help people gain the best experience, especially their learning experience, on digital platforms.

My work is dedicated to building people's knowledge and skills to self-regulate and remain resilient when navigating online. I build relevant frameworks, standards, and content to educate and raise awareness on online safety for different age groups from pre-schoolers to senior citizens.

I enjoy sharing my knowledge and experience through writing and speaking in relevant forums. I also serve as director on several boards of companies.
